Cancer Genetic Counseling and Testing Program

You have been identified as a candidate for cancer genetic counseling based on your personal history and/or family history. Your health care provider has recommended that you undergo an evaluation for a possible genetic connection that could be associated with the cancer identified in you or your family. This process usually takes two visits, which are described below.

One of our new patient coordinators will verify insurance benefits for your genetic visits and for the actual test before scheduling your appointment. Costs of your testing will be dependent on your insurance coverage and other factors.

Prior to your genetic counseling visit, please complete the form accompanying this packet, titled Pre-Visit Personal and Family Health History. Please fill it out to the best of your ability. In certain situations, family history information is simply not obtainable for various reasons. If that is the case, we will focus on the information that is available.

Initial visit (one hour):

- Review personal and family cancer history
- Conduct a risk assessment and provide insight about findings
- Discuss testing and proceed if agreeable and meet applicable guidelines
- Explore options for medical management based on risk factors while awaiting genetic test results
- Provide emotional support and answer any questions

Results visit (half hour; usually two to 6 weeks after initial visit):

- Explain test results, providing an explanation that is thorough, easy-to-understand and personal
- Make appropriate referrals for continuing medical management (if needed) and review risk factors
- Discuss family testing and how to move ahead (if appropriate)
- Provide a copy of test results, informative materials and a list of resources
